FAR EAST'S HIGHEST PHOTOGRAPHIC AWARD WON BY LIFT-BOY

pictures, unsuccessfully. But last year's exhibition gave him the thought that won the prize for him this year.

For years Sit had been yearning for such a picture as won him this year's trophy; where he might find such a scene had been his constant thought as his lift rose and fell.

In last year's exhibition he stopped before a picture of a junk when he saw the elements he desired. Excitedly, he worked out the location in which the picture must have been taken. It was the seniors about three minutes walk from Shatin Station.

Sit's Sunday excursions now had a purpose. For Sunday after Sunday he went with an improved camera when he had at last secured by saving two dollars a month—he took the early train from Kowloon to Shatin. Twenty times and more, in the dawn, he took his pet picture, but each time he was not satisfied.

One Sunday in June nature and humanity kindly disposed themselves to give him the picture that has won him the lift trophy.

Enlargements failed. Sit developed his picture, but, an idealist, found that several enlargements he had made in Hongkong failed to please him. Putting some of his small negatives into an Air Mail despatch, he sent his precious photograph to a friend in Germany, and paid a further $5 for its enlargement. How well such enterprise has been repaid is now history.

Sit's ambition, as well as his vision, have long scoffed at the confined limits of the Bank of Canton lift and even of Hongkong photographic competitions. He has sent away six pictures which now wait judgment in the London Salon Competition.

The poet who considered that stone walls do not a prison make and that iron bars are poor stuff for cage construction perhaps had a foresight of lift-constricted Sit To-day, undoubtedly, Sit is dreaming a new dream in which clouds, water, and mountains play an important part.

As for his lift trophy success—well, he has no more to say than "I am very happy."

S.O.S. For Missing People

LONDON, Oct. 9 (Reuter).—The German radio stations have been broadcasting long lists of people whose whereabouts are unknown. They are urgently asked to report their whereabouts immediately.

Some 10,000 names are given and their former addresses indicate that most of them come from the Saar district.

This seems to indicate that the Saar was evacuated in such a hurry that the authorities do not know what has become of the evacuees.

GERMANS LEAVING

ful work in the provinces regained by Germany and to restore German order there.

The journal adds that the movement proves that Germany does not intend to abuse, for imperialistic ends, German groups who for ages have been living in Eastern Europe, or to use their help for purposes of intervention.

The movement thus "lays the bogey of German aims of European hegemony," the paper concludes.

50,000 To Leave

RIGA, Oct. 9 (Reuter).—Nearly all of the 50,000 Germans in Latvia, of whom 40,000 live in Riga, have begun to pack in readiness to leave for Germany forthwith.

The German commission of experts, who helped the evacuation in South Tyrol, has come to supervise the move.

The Latvian Government has agreed in principle with the German scheme provided all taxes are paid.

It is estimated that 20 per cent. of the Germans have decided to go and there has been a great rush to buy suit-cases as the evacuees are instructed to take only light luggage.

All businesses must be liquidated and transferred to Latvians, or sealed for disposal by a special German committee.

It is understood that the evacuees will be settled in the Polish Corridor.

Russia Ratifies Pact

MOSCOW, Oct. 9 (Reuter).—Russia has ratified her pact with Latvia which gives her further naval and air bases.

Repatriation From Russia

LONDON, Oct. 9 (Reuter).—It is stated in Berlin to-day that the return of Germans from Russia would be considered soon.

48 Hours' Notice

LONDON, Oct. 9 (Reuter).—It is noted in well-informed quarters in London that the Soviets hitherto have not supported Hitler's peace proposals, notwithstanding the Soviet-German Treaty of friendship of September 26, which provided that joint efforts be made by the two governments to end the state of war, writes "Reuter's" diplomatic correspondent.

The situation as between Russia and Germany is somewhat obscure, and recent developments in the Baltic are difficult to understand.

Bewildering Developments

The surprising haste with which all Germans, whether by nationality or origin, are being evacuated from the three Baltic States is arousing much speculation.

Most of these Germans are wealthy merchants and traders, whose families have been settled in their present countries for centuries. Yet they are given only 48 hours to transfer themselves and their property to Germany.

In Slav circles in London, this extraordinary development is believed to portend rapid Bolshevization of the Baltic States.

Finland Will Resist Soviets

The summoning of the Finnish envoy to Moscow in another important development which may have an interesting sequel. Supported as they are by the Swedes, the Finns are not likely to submit to the humiliating conditions accepted by the Baltic States.

If it is only a question of the small islands in the Gulf of Finland, some arrangement, like a long lease, might conceivably be agreed, but if it is any question of naval bases and aerodromes in Finland and/or the Åland Isles, it is expected, according to well-informed Scandinavian opinion, that Finland will resist.

"Come-Home" Order

LONDON, Oct. 9 (Reuter).—German citizens from the Baltic States have already begun to arrive in Germany in obedience to Hitler's "Come-Home" order.

A message from Stockholm says that one ship left a Latvian port with Germans on board, and that other ships are standing by in Latvian and Estonian ports.

German citizens only are compelled to return to the Reich, and the first to go are men of military age. Others of German origin have been given 48 hours in which to decide whether they will return to the Reich, and become German citizens with all the drawbacks of such a change, including the loss of their neutral citizenship.

Going Against Will

Younger Germans in the Baltic States appear to be reluctant to return, but the older people are going against their will.

The German Government is sending a commission to Latvia and Estonia to arrange for the evacuation of Germans, of whom there are 60,000 in Latvia, and 10,000 in Estonia.

No formal steps are being taken in regard to the 30,000 Germans in Lithuania, though it is reported that they will be dealt with this week.

Families of many of these people have been established in Lithuania for centuries, and judging by their anxiety, only a proportion will agree to return to the Reich.

Foreign observers suggest that the idea of the transfer is to remove Germans from the contact of their new masters in the Baltic.

Fear Of Soviet Invasion

The Berlin correspondent of a Danish newspaper says that it is believed the move was facilitated by fear of a Russian invasion.

An unconfirmed report from Budapest says that secret negotiations have been going on between Germany and the Balkan Governments for the repatriation of Germans from the south of Europe.

These Germans, it is reported, would be made to settle in western Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Meanwhile it is also reported that Germany will shortly take steps to repatriate all Germans from Soviet Russia.

THE MAN AND THE BEAR

Once upon a time a man who had set out on a long journey through a forest encountered a bear. After a chat the two decided to continue the journey together, each promising to protect the other. The bear was more tireless than the man who, shortly afterwards, decided to have a rest while his companion stood guard. As the man slept, the bear saw a fly alight on his forehead. True to his promise, he struck at the fly with his huge paw and killed it. But he also killed the man!

TERSCHELLING ISLAND, Oct. 9 (UP).—The Finnish steamer Indra, carrying a cargo of timber, and conveyed by three vessels en route to Holland, struck a mine and sank to-day.

All the crew were rescued.

Departure Delayed

Helsinki, Oct. 9 (Reuter).—The Finnish delegation which was to have left for Moscow to-day to conduct "negotiations" postponed its departure until to-morrow.

The reason is that all questions of a political nature must be approved by the Finnish Parliament before any pact is signed.

Foreign Minister's Statement

HELSINKI, Oct. 9 (Reuter).—The Finnish Foreign Minister in a statement to-day on the Russian demand for "negotiations" declared:

"I know nothing of any territorial demands. Russia has not raised specified questions, but it is quite normal for one country to make such a request of another."

"We stand by our northern neutrality and we will not adhere to any great power or group of powers."

The statement is regarded as a reply to Stalin's reported demand for four Finnish islands.

A Norwegian paper to-day stated that any effort to extract concessions from Finland by force would be regarded as the deepest indignation all over Scandinavia.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 9 (Reuter).—A Swedish newspaper stated to-day that Finland will not submit to Russian dictation and "cannot" surrender a foot of Finnish soil.

Singapore Has A Problem

Lack Of Godowns Leads To Congestion

INQUIRIES made this morning revealed that Hongkong is not in the same acute position as Singapore with regard to godown congestion. In Singapore waterfront godowns Malayan cargo destined for European ports is piling up because of war risks and lack of freight space in Europe-bound ships.

The same position naturally does not obtain in Hongkong, which has not Singapore's immense export trade; in fact, the closing of the China coast ports has reduced the Colony's export trade practically to nil. How the resumption of the China Coast trade would affect the position must not be purely a matter of conjecture.

In Singapore forward bookings have become difficult as shippers are reluctant to commit themselves regarding space for more than a fortnight ahead. Stocks are at present going off in small shipments of from 50 to 100 tons.

The situation is in striking contrast to that existing three weeks ago, when there was plenty of freight space, but little rubber to send away.

U.S. NEUTRALITY

CONGRESS BATTLE

Rip-Roaring Fight In Representatives

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (UP).—A rip-roaring fight in the House of Representatives enlivened the debate on the Neutrality Bill as Senate progress became bogged in Parliamentary complexities.

The House fight pitted Rep. Clifford Woodrum against Rep. Hamilton Fish. Mr. Woodrum presented a resolution asking for a formal investigation of the organization which Mr. Fish established, known as the "Committee to Keep America Out of Foreign Wars," describing it as a gigantic propaganda racket.

Mr. Woodrum read newspaper despatches of Mr. Fish's activities on his recent European trip, and called attention to the fact that Mr. Fish travelled in Herr von Ribbentrop's personal plane, from Berlin to Oslo where he suggested a 30 days' truce.

Mr. Fish replied with a bitter personal attack charging that Mr. Woodrum did not serve in the world war, but held a "safe State job" in Virginia.

Earlier in the debate Rep. John Rankin interrupted Mr. Fish by suggesting that "debate is useless."

It is apparent the war will be over in a few days.

"Sure Way To Keep Out Of War"

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (UP).—Senator Allen Barkley to-day temporarily blocked Senator Edwin Johnson's motion that the Senate recess for three days pending the outcome of the European peace moves.

He asked Senator Johnson to delay the proposal until Senator Sheridan Downey had completed his speech against the Neutrality Act, and he assured Senator Johnson that he would not obstruct a later vote on the proposal.

Senator Barkley said: "It is one sure way to keep out of war. If we stop the war there will be no danger of our being involved. Germany will listen to an honourable peace proposal."

Chinese Intervention In War In Europe Urged By Mr. E. Chen

Chinese intervention in the European war, on the side of the Allied Powers, is advocated by Mr. Eugene Chen, former Chinese Foreign Minister, in a special Double Tenth message.

Mr. Chen says that if the war is restricted to Britain, France and Germany, British naval power will determine the victory of the Allied Powers, especially if the war is protracted. He is confident of an Allied victory, however many nations become embroiled in the conflict, and points out the advisability of China not remaining neutral. The policy of neutrality, he says, is the line of action prescribed by Japan for the Provisional Government.

To support his advocacy, Mr. Chen points out that China's delayed intervention in the last war was responsible for the Allied Powers concluding with Japan their pact concerning Shantung, and, he says, a similar danger may well exist to-day regarding the whole of China.

The statement says: In the midst of the struggle with an enemy whose will to conquer China is unquenched and not dissuaded, we celebrate another anniversary of the National Revolution which liberated us from an alien domination that endured for more than two and a half centuries. We shall retain mastery of our destiny as a sovereign People if faith is not lost in the principles that make for victory when a nation is circumstanced as we are to-day: a ruthless realism in finding out the material and moral elements of failure, knowledge and action to the challenge of new factors of environment, and realization that a modern war cannot be won on the strength of Confucian precepts.

With this in mind, I direct attention to the war in Europe, pregnant with great changes and vital issues which will test the strength and search the soul of nations. Because the mechanisation of war increases the validity of sea-power, particularly where the field of action lies in Europe. This continent (therefore Germany, Russia, etc.) is not self-sufficient in all the raw materials necessary and vital to victory in a mechanised war of the magnitude of the present one. While British sea-power, reinforced by that of France and Allied air-power, commands European and other waters, some of the vital materials of victory will not reach the enemy. In a long war, existing reserves of these materials will be exhausted and Allied sea-power will prevent enemy replenishment.

Should the struggle develop and attain the dread dimensions of a world war, the total war-power of Britain, France and the United States would dictate the victory of Western democracy irrespective of Russian, Italian or Japanese action. Superior sea-power enhanced by air-power, which would be vested in Allied and American hands, would be the determinant of victory. This certainty of ultimate Allied and American victory would decide the alignment of Italy and, probably, that of Japan as well as the role to be played by Russia. American participation with Britain and France is a strategic imperative, because an Allied defeat would transfer Allied sea-power with air-power to Germany which could then menace immediately the security of the United States and the independence of every state in Latin America.

As regards an early peace, its conclusion would be tantamount to a German victory. Hitler and his "wild men" planned a "lightning war" whose objective was the liquidation of Poland. His will win the war if of Poland the diplomatic arm ends it with the peace now demanded by him. But such a "peace" would be a negation of all that Britain and France stand for and might well mark them for the fate of those chosen by Hitler for destruction.

China and Neutrality

This eventual outcome of the war must be envisaged if Chinese national opinion is not to be misled by the belief in certain Chinese circles that the Allies may not win. This belief is wrong and its implication is that, since the Allies may lose, it is advisable for China to maintain neutrality. But a policy of neutrality is precisely the line of action prescribed by Japan for the Provisional Government. The reason is clear. A dominant aim of Japanese policy is politically to cut off and isolate China from the West in order to consummate Japan's diplomatic encirclement of China and impose on Britain, France, and other Powers the view that the Japanese invasion of China is a local "incident" to be settled directly between Japan and China. Should Japan succeed in this purpose, the international basis would be laid for the consolidation of the invasion in a later structure of conquest. Chinese neutrality, declared or undeclared, would forward this large design of Japanese statecraft.

A Pro-Allied Policy

Since neutrality is thus untenable, China must needs intervene on the side of the Allied Powers or on that of Germany. As the latter will be defeated according to the view expressed here, the course of China is clear and ineluctable. She must define her attitude in a declaration in favour of the Allied Powers and range herself against totalitarian autocracy with its conception and practice of lawless force as an instrument of national and international domination.

There are other inexcusable reasons which summon China to pro-Allied intervention. But certain considerations must be referred to for the present. A detailed reference to them should be withheld with one exception. German aggression in the West has admittedly prevented British and French action in connection with Japanese aggression in the Far East since the opening of hostilities in China on July 7, 1937. If this was true before the outbreak of the European war, it is truer now that the "Next War" has been inaugurated in the West, and Poland has been done to death, hacked by Hitler's hordes. This factor of German aggression must be stressed because, in addition to certain internal factors, it accounts for the fact that resistance has not yet fulfilled all the wishes and expectations of the People.

The defeat of Hitlerite Germany, therefore, is a vital interest of China and China's policy of resistance must be in the new situation created by the war in Europe, view it as one of the conditions of victory in our struggle with Japanese aggression. In this sense, it may soberly be said that the destiny of China will be decided on the same battlefield in the West where the fate of Britain and France is to be decided along with the cause of freedom as a principle and condition of the life of civilised men.

Programme of Action

What programme of action do these considerations press us to formulate

"We've two dollars left over this week, dear—there MUST be some instalment we forgot to pay!"

and carry out? If Chinese intervention is not to be an idle gesture, it must be implemented, in the first instance, by severance of diplomatic relations with Germany, though, in order to avoid any question of the application to China of American neutrality legislation, a formal state of war between China and Germany should be deferred until Allied need of man-power rather than their own become pressing after the first year of fighting. The war is destined to devour the manhood of Europe in spite of the economy in casualties which a defensive strategy is expected to yield.

In the meantime preparations can begin for the recruiting, throughout China, of men for eventual service as workers, soldiers and seamen on the Western front in Europe and, in case the war spreads on other fronts as well as on Allied shipping. With proper organisation and Allied technical and other co-operation, a large expeditionary force of a million and more men could be gradually sent abroad without weakening the work of resistance to the invasion. The speedy adoption of this policy of intervention is desirable in view of the historical experience of the Great War of 1914-18 when China delayed intervention until it was too late to prevent the then Allied Powers from concluding with Japan their secret pact concerning Shantung. A similar danger may well exist to-day regarding not only Shantung itself but the whole of China.

Allied Attitude

It is possible that the Allied Powers might be embarrassed by, or might deprecate, Chinese intervention unceremoniously on the fear that Japan might attack their positions in "East Asia," including Hongkong and Indo-China. Britain's continental enlargement of the Japanese Empire into a "New Order in East Asia" would be incomplete without the elimination of Britain and France as Asiatic Powers. Japan would not dare to attack them unless she was convinced of Allied defeat in the European war. As long as the certainty of Allied victory remains a postulate of the European war situation, it will determine Japan's action in the Far East as it will determine her attitude to the larger Allied struggle with German aggression in the West. If Allied diplomacy could only realise its own basic strength and apply this postulate to the Far East, there would be an end to the series of failures and humiliations heaped, especially, on the British by the Japanese.

If Japanese aggression on manes, as it undoubtedly does, the security of Britain and France as Asiatic Powers, the necessary and natural ally of these Powers vis-a-vis Japan is and must be China. On this reality of the situation created by Japanese aggression, the Anglo-French policy in this region of Asia must be founded. If this is true, some structure of co-operation between Britain, France and China is a manifest need. There are now forces at work which will erect it, particularly when the fact is grasped that China is inherently not a weak Power.

She possesses, for instance, manpower that is, in numbers and size, superior to the combined man-power of Britain, France and Germany and, if European Russia is included, equal to such a formidable aggregate of human energy. And that the Chinese

CONFUCIUS BIRTHDAY

General Holiday For Chinese Firms

The Chinese community particularly the schools yesterday celebrated the anniversary of the birthday of Confucius, Chinese sage and patriot. It was a holiday for nearly all Chinese firms, including the leading stores like the Sincere and Wing On Companies.

Yesterday morning there was a meeting of members of the Confucian Hall at Caroline Hill Road, Mr. Chan Lan-fong officiating. Those attending included Messrs. S. W. Tso, Chan Kam-po, Fung Kl-cheuk, Lui Yam-shuen, Lau Yuk-wan, Ip Lan-chuen and many others.

can fight is attested by more than two years of war with a Great Power. Her man-power and her fighting capacity entitle China to rank as a fully military Britain and France even in a military sense.

Should the Allied attitude continue unsatisfactory regarding Chinese intervention, there are other considerations and measures which could be invoked but which it might not be wise publicly to consider at this stage.

It is possible but not at all probable that Germany may win. But in this unlikely event, it would not matter to the fate of China whether she should join the Allied Powers or maintain neutrality with regard to Germany. The latter, in any case, would not interfere with a Japanese conquest of China. This would hold even should the conquest notoriously affect German trade and commerce in China. A victorious Germany would have more than she could exploit, economically and otherwise, in the countries, possessions, colonies that make up the British and French Empire!

Double Tenth

OF THE twenty-seven occasions
on which China has celebrated the anniversary of the foundation of the Republic, five have been spent in hostilities with Japan, a record that has been responsible for enormously
retarding the growth and unification
of this great but young republic who is our neighbour.

To-day is the twenty-eighth Double Tenth. It is also the 25th day of hostilities with Japan. As the war has lengthened from weeks into months and from months into years, the declared Japanese objective of establishing a "peaceful regime" seems more remote than at the beginning. In actual fighting Japan was successful for the first 18 months, but she has now reached an impasse from which there appears no retreat but surrender—of what she set out to attain.

Japan may control the great ports,
the railways and the commercial waterways, but while nominally
more than a third of China is under her control, actually her rule does not extend beyond the range of her guns, so that to-day Chinese everywhere in the occupied areas will let off their fire-crackers and celebrate their great National day with as much enthusiasm and impunity as they have done in Hongkong.

Meanwhile, China has been welded
under the hammer-strokes of Japan
into a nation whose solidarity is greater than anything witnessed
during the first quarter-century of republicanism.

There appears, indeed, to be more cohesion in China to-day than in Japan, which seems, after 27 months of warfare, to be trembling on the brink of the abyss. She has changed her governments with bewildering
frequency; her allies have deserted
her; she has antagonised her old friends; and her people are heartily sick of the adventure that has cost them so many lives and their economic welfare.

It is interesting to note, in the last three months, the changed tone of the Japanese newspapers.

An issue of the "Japan Times",
just to hand, strikingly indicates the growing worry of the Japanese people. The people, complains the newspapers, have no idea of the goal
their country is aiming at in China.
"They are left in the dark because there seems no national policy to guide their thought. The whole
China Affair was called an incident;
it would have been truer to say it
began as an accident."

"Little more is known about the
constitution of a new order in China. The expression has already
become trite,"—and the newspaper
goes on to complain of the draining
of the country's stocks of rice and
the consequential rise in prices.

"It has often been said that our Government will always adopt an 'independent diplomatic policy.' It sounds as if the Government did not conduct its diplomacy along independent lines at some time or another. In the past, people have nothing to pass judgment on the diplomatic policy of the Government

The DOUBLE TENTH

CHINA'S National Independence Day—
October 10—commemorates the anniversary of the outbreak of the revolutionary war which took place at Wuchang on October 10, 1911, and which so rapidly led to the abdication
of the Manchu Emperor and the creation of a Republic
in China.

Twenty-eight years ago to-day
this startling blow was struck
at the old regime and since then the history of China has been one of the most interesting periods through which any section of humanity has had to pass. It has also been fraught with much suffering and unrest
for the Chinese people.

Twenty-eight years! What a vision of strife and struggle, of change
and frantic effort the very words call up. Disappointments have been many and at times it seems as if much has been in vain.

But to-day in celebrating the birthday of the Republic we may look back and see that it is not so.

Despite all the set-backs, and all the disasters, the 28 years have fundamentally been 28 years of steady progress towards making China a Modern State and securing for her (to use the terms of Sun Yat-sen's Will) "a position of independence and equality among nations."

The revolutionary movement in China is not as old as some people suppose. During the eighteenth century the great Manchu Emperors raised China to a high pitch of greatness but early in the nineteenth century the period of decline set in and by the fifties it was plain that the Manchus had long passed their zenith and that China was slipping badly behind the rest of the world.

Even then there were thinking Chinese who were dissatisfied with the condition of things and the widespread ruin caused by the Taiping Rebellion served further to unsettle
men's minds.

But the definite formation of a reformist party only antedated the outbreak of the Revolution by some two decades.

It began as the Hsing-Chung Hui (Society for the Regeneration of China), which developed successively into the Tung-Meng Hui (United League), the Kuomintang (National People's Party), the Chung-Hwa Ke-ming-tang (National People's Party of China).

These various organizations were
in essence one and the same party
under the same revolutionary leaders, existing at different times, but with the same purpose—the overthrow of the prevailing autocracy
and the establishment of a "democratic Republic."

There were, of course, a few men who desired the evolution of the autocracy into a Constitutional Monarchy but the Manchus were commonly regarded as foreigners by the masses and China was at this time a fatal obstacle to a process
which many observers felt would have been a better thing for the Chinese than a Republic on Western lines. But a Republic it had to be from the very nature of the case.

THE Hsing-Chung Hui was organized by Dr. Sun Yat-sen in 1892
in the city of Macao following his graduation from Queen's College in Hongkong and henceforth, until his death in 1925, the history of the revolutionary movement is very largely
the life-story of this remarkable man.

In order to carry on the activities of his Society, Dr. Sun established drug stores in Canton and Macao, in these centres his colleagues and followers gathered and laid their plans.

The Tung-Meng Hui came into existence in 1905 as the result of a merger of the Hsing-Chung Hui
with two other revolutionary organizations. Branches were formed among the overseas Chinese all over the world and the overseas Chinese rapidly came to play a very important part in the revolutionary movement.

Dr. Sun was born on November 12, 1866, in the Taichung village, Chung-shun district, Kwangtung, of peasant parentage. In 1877 he went to except what has been translated in terms of hostilities in China. . . .

If there is any national policy to
guide their thought, the whole
China Affair was called an incident;
it would have been truer to say it
began as an accident.

"Little more is known about the
constitution of a new order in China. The expression has already
become trite,"—and the newspaper
goes on to complain of the draining

the consequential rise in prices.

MARSHAL CHIANG KAI-SHEK WITH HIS WAR LIEUTENANTS

Honolulu to stay with his brother and attended school there for five years. Here he was influenced by American ideals and became imbued with advanced conception. On returning to Hongkong he entered Queen's College. At that time he was already profoundly dissatisfied
with the political condition of China.

In 1885 he graduated from Queen's College and the following year entered the Pao Tsi Medical College
at Canton and made the acquaintance of Cheng Sze-liang who strongly supported his revolutionary ideas.

In 1887 he was transferred to the Hongkong Medical College and graduated in 1892.

He began to practice in Macao but,
as already indicated, his medical profession career was short-lived, for he gave it up and spent his days in revolutionary effort.

A general outcry for political reforms rose from every side of China
after the country's defeat in the Sino-Japanese War of 1895.

Sun Yat-sen found more converts
than ever before but the discovery of arms that were being secretly transported caused a large number of his followers to be captured.

This was the first failure of the Revolution and Dr. Sun had to flee to Hongkong and thence to Japan,
Honolulu and America.

In 1896 he sailed for England and the famous incident occurred in which Dr. Sun was ensnared by the Chinese Legation where he was confined for 12 days but was released
through the agency of his teacher,
Dr. James Cantile, who thus frustrated the scheme to smuggle him back to the Manchus Government in Peking
for execution.

After the Boxer rising in 1900, the cause of the Chinese Revolution
made great progress and when Wuchang fell in 1911 the doom of the Manchus dynasty was quickly sealed.

On January 1, 1912, Dr. Sun Yat-sen became first President of the Chinese Republic which was formally proclaimed.

But the stirring events of 1911
proved to be only the beginning of a long period of struggle.

Yuan Shih-kai, who had been called in during the last days of the Manchu dynasty to uphold the tottering Monarchy, had ambitions of his own; he headed the military party
and had great weight with the more conservative elements in the country.

While Sun believed in the awakening of the masses of the people to political knowledge and power, Yuan thought that military force was the one thing needful to hold China
together.

He began, too, to dream of a new dynasty with himself as Emperor.
The Manchus had already abdicated
on February 12, 1912.

Not realizing how far Yuan's schemes went, Dr. Sun yielded him
the Presidency after he had held it for the short space of three months.
Resigning on April 1, he travelled through a number of provinces and busied himself with the advocacy of a national railway system. He then visited Japan but on his return helped to organize the "Second Revolution" (July 1913) against Yuan Shih-kai, of whose ulterior motives
he had now become suspicious and whose scant treatment of the Parliament, especially in the conclusion of the "Reorganization Loan" in face of parliamentary opposition, had raised
up for himself a considerable opposition.

The revolt, however, was suppressed without difficulty by the Northern Armies, and Yuan's political opponents were so overawed
by his failure that he was elected formal President of the Republic by the requisite majority on October 6, 1913. General Li Yuan-hung was elected Vice-President at the first ballot. Foreign recognition of the Republic by the Treaty Powers
followed, and the Diplomatic Corps attended President Yuan's formal inauguration.

There were widespread hopes that China was about to enter upon a period of peaceful progress under the wing of Constitutional Government.
It was not to be! Yuan Shih-kai

clung to his ambitions, persecuted the Kuomintang, and, failing at the last moment, died in 1916 a broken and disappointed man. Out of his collapse sprang the period of the Tsuchus of Military Governors who held most of China in thrall until the Nationalists occupied Peking in 1928.

No sooner was Yuan Shih-kai formally installed as President than he proscribed the Kuomintang as a seditious organization and unseated
all members of the two Houses belonging to that Party, thereby depriving the Legislature of a legal quorum.

In January, 1914, the National Assembly was dissolved by Presidential mandate, and a new advisory body
was created to act in its stead, filled with the President's nominees.

Two years of absolute rule by Yuan Shih-kai followed, and then his Monarchical project was launched
with the support—political and financial—of Liang Shih-yi and others.
The Japanese and other Foreign Ministers warned Yuan against mounting the Throne, and in December, 1915, a revolt, organized by Tsun Ao, broke out in Yunnan. Other Southern Provinces joined in the rebellion, and Yuan Shih-kai, too late,
recognized that the fulfilment of his ambitions was impossible. He revoked the Monarchical scheme, and died in June, 1916, being succeeded,
in accordance with the Constitution,
by General Li Yuan-hung. Feng
Kuo-chang became Vice-President.

The new President reconvened the old Parliament, which pursued an ineffective existence until June 1917
when its dissolution was demanded
by the militarists on various pretexts.
General Chang Hsun, who had come up to Peking from Hsuehchow to mediate, attempted to restore the boy
Emperor Hsuan Tung in August but Tsun Chi-jui attacked the capital and overthrew Chang who fled to the Dutch Legation. President Li Yuan-hung who had sought refuge in the Legation Quarter during the conflict, refused to resume office, and Feng Kuo-chang became President of the Republic. The Government now fell into the hands of the militarists
almost completely and the Parliament which met in August, 1918, and elected Hsu Shih-chang as President, was known as the "Tsuchus" Parliament.

The Southern leaders declared it to be illegal and a new "Government,"
in which Sun Yat-sen, Tang Shao-yi
and Wu Ting-fang had the leading roles, was set up. It is not the purpose of this article to treat in entirety
the quarrels of the Southern leaders
or the campaigns against one another of the Northern militarists.

After various vicissitudes, Sun Yat-sen was elected "President of the Chinese Republic" in April, 1921, by the remnants of the old Parliament
assembled in Canton.

The very next year, however, Chen Chung-ming revolted and Sun had to leave for Shanghai. Chen Chungming's hold on Canton did not prove a lasting one and, after making use of Shen Hung-yin's troops, and then,
when Shen turned traitor, of Yunnan-ese troops, Sun Yat-sen was able to establish himself once more in Canton in the latter part of 1923. The following twelve-months were stormy ones and practically resolved themselves into a constant struggle between Dr. Sun and his mercenaries and the Cantonese.

IN November, 1924, Dr. Sun accepted the invitation of Tuan Chi-lu
to Peking to take part in a conference designed to settle the differences between the Northern Warlords. He arrived in Peking on December 31, in very feeble health, suffering as he was from cancer on the liver, and had to take to his bed.

His hopeless condition had become known after an exploratory operation conducted by foreign doctors on January 26, but he lingered on until March 12, when he passed away in the presence of the members of his family, his personal followers, and one member of the Government,
Yeh Kung-cho, his parting words
being "Peace—Struggle—Save China."

So died Sun Yat-sen, the "Father of the Chinese Republic," the "Great Teung-ll"; and, as subsequent events proved, he was to be even greater in death than in life.

GENERALISSIMO Chiang Kai-shek
was born in Fenghuang, Chekiang,
in 1886.

He graduated at the Paoing
Military Academy and the Tokyo Military Staff College and was an early member of the Tung Men Hui.

In 1923 he came to prominence as Chief of Staff to Dr. Sun Yat-sen and went to Soviet Russia to study its military system.

Influenced by Soviet examples, he became the founder and principal of the Whampoa Military Academy
and speedily made a name.

The continued disorders of the Period of the Tsuchus, the rivalries of the various military leaders in the North, and the disgust of the population with their conduct, all paved the way for a great effort on the part of the reorganized Kuomintang to conquer the country from the base of Canton and on June 11, 1926, General
Chiang Kai-shek assumed office as Commander-in-Chief of the Nationalist Army at Canton, and at a subsequent meeting of the Central Executive Committee of the Kuomintang
was invested with dictatorial powers.

General Chiang soon afterwards became known as an anti-Communist
and broke with Borodin.

In March, Chiang effected an anti-Communist coup and, with the assistance of General Wu Te-chen then of the Canton Police, carried out a number of arrests.

Wang Ching-wei was forced to leave Canton and take refuge abroad.
In May, Borodin and Hu Han-min
returned to Canton, and for some time there was a temporary truce.
General Chiang Kai-shek remained opposed to Communism and after various vicissitudes, Borodin was compelled to leave China.

Space does not permit detailing all the events of General Chiang Kai-shek's campaigns nor the various political vicissitudes which attended them. Suffice to say that General Chiang displayed a veritable genius for military operations and was able to overthrow his foes by superior strategic abilities and the good discipline of his troops.

Nanking was evacuated by the Northern forces on March 23, 1927,
and occupied by Southern troops under General Cheng Chien, the following day.

The capture of Peking and the inauguration of the National Government at Peking did not result, however, in the immediate settlement of the country. The reign of the Tsuchus had gone but there were still a number of high military commanders with considerable forces who sought their own interests and were disaffected towards the National Government.

The movements for which they were responsible continued right down to 1932 and may perhaps be considered to have closed only with the outbreak of the war with Japan.

The most disturbing feature of the Chinese situation to-day reminds the relations between China and Japan.
The efforts of the National Government to improve the condition of the country by such measures as currency reform and the establishment of new industrial, economic and educational movements have been retarded by the 27-months of warfare that has followed. Nevertheless, accelerated progress in all that is most closely identified with the welfare of the Chinese people has been observed and if the question of relationships with Japan could only be settled it is universally admitted that the future of the long and tried Republic could be regarded as assured.

"National Unification" is the watchword to-day, and China is nearer to the ideal than ever before.

OVERNIGHT
NEWS PAGEGermany Alarmed
By The Soviet

PARIS, Oct. 9 (Reuter Special).—The "retreat before Soviet imperialism" is widely commented in the Paris Press, which declares that German policy continues to be dictated by Soviet demands.

"The mass emigration of Germans in Latvia set in motion by order of the German Government shows that Hitler fears Stalin," writes "Pictorial" in "L'Ordre."

GERMAN ADMISSION
LONDON, Oct. 9 (Reuter).—The Berlin Radio in this connection made the surprising frank admission that Germany was not particularly pleased with the Russian domination of the Baltic.

Soviet Trade

Agreement
With Reich
Now Signed

Berlin, Oct. 9. The German trade delegation to Russia has arrived in Moscow, announces the German official news agency.

The delegation is led by Dr. Schürer of the economics department of the Foreign Ministry, and it is expected to stay a fortnight in Moscow.—Reuter.

Foreign Supplies Disrupted

Washington, Oct. 9. The United States commercial attaché in Berlin has reported to the Commerce Department the disruption of German oil imports from the Western Hemisphere, sources in the United States and Mexico, Germany can no longer depend on these nations to augment her self-sufficiency programme, which must be postponed and modified. The agreement with the Soviet Union is the first step towards modification. German petroleum interests anticipate a renewal of barter arrangements in connection with the Berlin-Moscow trade agreements.—United Press.

Agreement Reached

Moscow, Oct. 9. It is announced that the Soviet Foreign Commissar, M. Molotov, and the German Economic Delegation have reached an agreement whereby the Soviet Union will immediately begin supplying Germany with materials and Germany filling orders of the Soviet Union.—United Press.

Barter Scheme Ready

The official Russian news agency states that an agreement has already been reached whereby Russia will immediately begin supplying Germany with materials in exchange for manufactured goods.

Meanwhile, it is reported that Germany is facing a serious shortage of oil for her mechanized forces. Germany needs to import large quantities of oil if she is to carry on the war and many observers are questioning her ability to meet her requirements.

Chungshan War

Chinese Defenders To Continue Struggle

CANTON, Oct. 9. An official Japanese Army communique says that 219 Chinese soldiers were abandoned dead and 10 others were taken prisoner in Chungshan on Friday.

A junction has been effected between the Japanese who entered Shekai on Friday and the marines who reached the waterfront yesterday. Commander Matsubara, of the marine corps, was received by the commandant of the Japanese Army detachment in front of the Chinese District Government office.

While disposing of mines and other obstacles in the tributary of the West River, the marines yesterday occupied various Chinese bases along the river banks.—Domei.

Shekai Occupation

Chungshan, Oct. 8. The Japanese are now effectively occupying Shekai with occasional street fighting with the defenders whose resistance collapsed owing to shortage of ammunition.

Elsewhere the Chinese units are still resisting bravely with General Chang, Wei-chung, Magistrate, organizing defences in other parts of the district.

Refugees are swarming towards Macao, stolidly tramping dozens of miles, carrying wounded victims, children and their meagre belongings, despite occasional machine-gunning from Japanese planes. Several cases have occurred when children were lost during the confusion.

Refugees are still crowding towards Macao.—Reuter.

A CHILLY RECEPTION
TO HITLER'S SPEECHNeutral Countries Show
No Sign of Desire To Intervene in Conflict

Germany is not accepting the first outright rejections of Herr Hitler's peace proposals and official opinion is content to wait for detailed examination by the British and French Governments.

The Soviet newspapers strongly urge acceptance of the proposals as a basis for peace talks, even should the Allies consider that corrections and alterations are necessary before they are acceptable.

Germany, surprising the Allies considerably, has announced that she is not pleased by the rapid growth of Russian influence in the Baltic.

A German delegation in Bulgaria is staying indefinitely. It is stated that disagreement exists between the Governments as to what type of goods should be supplied to Germany.

In Moscow it is announced that an agreement has already been reached regarding the trade barter plan between the Soviet and Germany, but it is pointed out that as Germany's supplies of oil are now cut off from other sources, the Soviet cannot supply Germany with either sufficient or sufficiently high grade oil for her war needs.

London, Oct. 9. Authoritative replies to Herr Hitler's Reichstag speech will be delivered in speeches by Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Daladier within the next few days.

Opinion in both Britain and France and in the Dominions, whose Governments are in consultation with the United Kingdom Government, as expressed through the Press and in public speeches, has condemned out of hand the proposals unsupported by adequate guarantees.

The reception of the speech in neutral countries has been scarcely less chilling. Nowhere is there a sign that any neutral country will take the initiative offered by the Fuehrer.

Signor Mussolini in a recent speech made no reference to Hitler's plan, and has denounced it. The sovereigns of Holland and Belgium decline to intervene. In the United States Senator Key Pittman is declaring that President Roosevelt may make another effort for peace, adds significantly, "But not until a spirit of adjustment is manifest."

Commenting on the trend of neutral opinion, the Daily Telegraph says everywhere outside the frontiers of Nazi rule Hitler's terms are seen to be futile. The Times, after noting that the speech included several proposals in themselves unexceptionable, says, "The long record of Hitler's broken pledges has proved to all the world that neither his spoken word nor his signature to a treaty has the slightest value. In these circumstances, no proposals he might make could lead to negotiation, unless they were accompanied by tangible guarantees that what he contracted to do would, in fact, be carried out. No such guarantees were offered on Friday—it has been widely maintained in the United States and other neutral countries that no guarantees strong enough to blind Hitler to his weakness are capable of being devised. There is nothing left for them but to strengthen their resolve to rid Europe of a man and a policy that are an essential obstacle to its peace."—British Wireless.

War Aims Definite

London, Oct. 9. Replying to a Labourite suggestion in the Commons that the Government should publish a specific statement on war aims, Mr. Chamberlain said that the two Governments were in complete accord as to the purposes for which they entered the war and these purposes had been stated more than once.

Doubtless, as time goes on, both Governments will consider whether the war aims should be stated in a more specific form. Such a statement will only be made by agreement between the two Governments.—Reuter Special.

Soviet Suggestion

Moscow, Oct. 9. The Izvestia in an editorial states that the continuance of the war on the basis of restoring Poland would be senseless slaughter, that the fight to crush Hitlerism would be criminal, and that Hitler's peace bid could serve a real and practical basis for peace negotiations.

The article goes on to say that it is legitimate to ask whether, if Britain and France continue the war to "crush Hitler," the basis of the real aim is not to consolidate their world domination.—United Press.

Soviet Anxious For Peace

Moscow, Oct. 9. The newspaper Izvestia declares that Hitler's proposals may be accepted, declined or corrected in one way or another, but one cannot help admitting that in any case they can serve as a real and practical basis for negotiations for early conclusion of peace.

Following up dissolution of the Polish State, there is no longer any justification for continuation of the war.—Reuter.

Artillery throughout the night. Choi Hang is completely isolated, but the refugee centre is believed to be safe. Communication with Shekai is completely disrupted, but it is believed that Father Amal and Ramiro of the Portuguese Mission are safe while Dr. Winterstein, in charge of the Shekai Hospital, is believed to be still on duty.—Our Own Correspondent.

Refugees Crowd Macao

Chungshan, Oct. 9. General Cheung, Wei-chung, has been slightly wounded by bomb splinters, but he refuses to leave his forces and is still opposing the Japanese and directs operations actively.

There have been heavy engagements with several planes participating with severe losses to the Chinese, principally owing to the continued plane activities.

Refugees are still crowding towards Macao.—Reuter.

Shiukwan Leader

Shiukwan, Oct. 9. The death of General Tam Shui of the 12th Army Corps, occurred on Saturday.

General Tam was suffering from tuberculosis and died in Yungyuen. He was known for his distinguished service in General Yu Hsiang-mow's army corps.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

Optimistic
Note By
Dr. Kung

Chungking, Oct. 9. "It is with exceptional joy that we greet this anniversary of National Independence Day," declared Dr. H. H. Kung, President of the Executive Yuan and concurrently Minister of Finance, in a nationwide message on the occasion of the Double Tenth.

"This occasion gives us cause for joy because it comes at a time when the enemy is encountering serious military drawbacks, as evidence of our recent victory in North Hunan.

"Economically also the enemy is doomed to failure as the result of many unsuccessful efforts to seize our material resources, which have been crushed by our effective counter measures."

Dr. Kung pointed out that because of military and economic failure the Japanese have persistently been resorting to political manoeuvres, for which reason "very serious problems are confronting the Chinese nation, not Japanese aggression, but the activity of traitors who are willing to co-operate with the Japanese."

Puppets Attacked

Dr. Kung bitterly attacked the puppet regimes, pointing out, "They will be unable to achieve their object, because they do not represent the Chinese people as a whole and they are not supported by the Chinese masses."

He recalled that one of the objects of the revolution of 1911 was the building up of the national character, which represented the symbol of an independent state.

He said that the puppet regime, which was manipulated by the Japanese, was not recognised as a Government, because it lacked population and territory together with the attributes of the state.—United Press.

German Troops
Concentrate
Near Rhine

Paris, Oct. 9. A very large German concentration is taking place on the right bank of the Rhine from Lake Constance to Basle, according to the correspondent of Le Matin on the Swiss frontier.

The correspondent adds that the troops will probably serve to support the offensive along the Rhine to Basle to Strasbourg which will not take place until Germany knows definitely the result of the peace offensive.

Meanwhile the population of all the German villages behind the right bank of the Rhine is being evacuated. Increased German activity on the Western Front is noticed by Mr. Charles Morice, who in Le Petit Parisien says that in the past 24 hours the Germans have unceasingly sent out patrols which are very enterprising in all sectors. No sooner was one patrol repulsed than another appeared, but there has been no modification in the French lines.

The writer thinks that the activity may foreshadow a German offensive in the region north of Thionville. He believes the enemy would like to announce as soon as possible that the armies have set foot in Lorraine, and that such an attack would set the whole front afire and the German operation will degenerate into a general battle between two lines of fortresses.—Reuter.

Propaganda At Front

London, Oct. 9. For the first time German last night used powerful loud speakers on the Western Front. These loud speakers were used to broadcast selected passages from Hitler's speech.—Reuter Bulletin.

Tokyo Dispute

Unsettled
MUTINEERS
ADAMANT

Tokyo, Oct. 9. After a whole day conference the Foreign Office rejected Admiral Nomura's compromise plan. They again demanded unification of political and economic diplomacy submitted in the substitute plan whose acceptance, however, is doubtful, because it is liable to undermine the Cabinet's decision to create a Trade Ministry.

The Asahi Shinbun says it is understood that certain senior diplomats may mediate, fearing that the Foreign Office may cease to function. The Hochi Shinbun asserts that the Privy Council is showing a tendency to question the attitude of the actions of the Prime Minister and Foreign Minister in connection with the Trade Ministry.

The Kokumin Shinbun declares that the Japanese Embassies, Legations and Consulates all over the world are sending cables of encouragement to the mutineers.—Reuter.

Soviet Officials
Leave Shanghai

SHANGHAI, Oct. 9 (United Press).—All ranking Soviet consular and Embassy officers have already departed from Shanghai and an announcement to-day that the Consul-General for Norway had taken charge of Soviet affairs locally.

Soviet officials started leaving Shanghai quietly soon after the signing of the Soviet-German Pact of non-aggression, and the exodus was apparently spurred following the outbreak of war.

Finland
Insists On Neutrality

Helsinki, Oct. 9. The Finnish delegate, M. Paasilkivi, will probably go to Moscow to-night. Newspapers commenting on the situation point out that Finland is unable to accept terms infringing her neutrality.—United Press.

Finland Ready For Worst

Helsinki, Oct. 9. This move is regarded as a tacit admission that Russia will dominate the Inner Baltic—Russia has obtained naval and air force bases in Estonia and Latvia and is at present negotiating for bases in Lithuania—Russia has "invited" Finland for negotiations, reportedly including concessions for Russian naval and air bases in the Åland Islands, also Hogland.

Meanwhile Finnish sources are very reticent, although it is reported that Finland is not prepared to submit if it is able to withstand diplomatic attacks, particularly Russian fortification of the Ålands. It is reported that the Foreign Minister, M. Erkkio, has refused to go personally to Moscow and is delegating M. Juvon Paasilkivi, Finnish Minister to Sweden, as special envoy.

Furthermore, it is added that 100,000 territorial, a standing army of 40,000 and another 100,000 are ready to be called. A prominent Finn said, "We have fought the Russians for centuries, sometimes losing and sometimes winning. When we lose we are like a porcupine in Russia's pocket."—United Press.

Black Sheep In
Jap. Army

Peking, Oct. 9. A Japanese spokesman, in referring to the Maloney case, stated today that the Army was sorry to have such a soldier, but all armies have black sheep.

The spokesman said that general investigations found that the case had occurred, but the soldier was not arrested by the gendarme.

The Chinese police notified the Japanese headquarters guard, who removed the soldier and questioned him. The soldier gave the name of his regiment, but later when he was sought he could not be found as he had told a lie and the case could not be confirmed. However, the spokesman had left some Japanese wine bottles behind and he may yet be traced.—United Press.

The incident was one in which drunken Japanese soldiers entered the premises of the Irish Fathers in Peking, beat up a Chinese worker and abused Father Anthony J. Maloney. One of the soldiers pushed Father Maloney aside when he intervened. They stole an evergreen pencil, a pen and a Japanese phrase book. The priests' American passport was thrown to the floor.

White Russia
Urged To Join Soviet

Moscow, Oct. 9. That White Russia must go back to the Soviet Union is indicated in an appeal of the Provisional Government at Bielsk published in the Press, urging all White Russian cities to convocate a national assembly to ratify the peasant seizure of land and nationalisation of banks and industry.

The Provisional Government invariably consist of a commander of the Red Army, representative Communists and two local representatives.—United Press.

CRICKET PROSPECTS FOR 1939-40

SEVERAL NEW PLAYERS FOR CLUB SIDE

Varsity Should Benefit By Staying Down

(By "R. ABBIT")

The decision to carry on with League cricket is I think a very wise one. The circumstances now are not the same as those during the first months of the former war when the German China Squadron was still somewhere in the Pacific and the Volunteers were fully mobilized. Later one did one's drills and musketry on weekdays and played games on Saturday with as often as not some military exercises on Sunday. There were also camps. I remember getting fourteen days off for the Lo Wu camp in 1917 and it was one of the best times I ever enjoyed.

From what I hear it seems probable that endeavours will be made to arrange the training—and of course the training is of paramount importance—that football and cricket can continue. I sincerely trust this will be so. I remember a certain pretty senior officer arriving in the Colony during the last War and expressing horror at the fact that we were playing cricket when there was a war on. I have never been able to understand this point of view or to make out how we can help the progress of the war at home by moping about doing nothing instead of taking healthy exercise in games.

THE PRESENT SEASON

This season of course will present certain difficulties I have no doubt. For one thing players who are of military age will no doubt find it difficult to get much rest and practice. But from what I saw of the Club Ground on Saturday last I am inclined to think that there is more new blood coming along for the H.K.C.C. than there has been for some time. It was badly needed.

I have at present no information about the L.C. and the Recreation. I imagine they will have difficulties though in less degree than the Club.

THE C.S.C.C.

The Civil Service will have a pretty poor time, I am afraid. Baker, on whom the bowling depends so much, is, or was when I last heard, on full time duty with the Naval Volunteers. Whether he will be able to play at all I do not know, and I am rather doubtful if several others of their better men will be able to play regularly. However, we shall see.

K.C.C.

The Kowloon side looks very much as if it will be little changed and two powerful elevens should be available. Goodwin is captain but it is unlikely he will play much and Teddy Fincher will captain the team in the field. I hope to comment more on the K.C.C. after the game vs. Hongkong to-day.

THE UNIVERSITY

I find it difficult to make up my mind about the decision of the League not to allow the University to play in the first Division. Had they been outstandingly superior to the other second Division teams I do not think there could have been any doubt in the case. But, though a useful and desperately keen side, they did not defeat all other sides. I can appreciate their desire to play against the better sides and thus to improve their own game. But they would, I fancy, have suffered defeat in the majority of their matches and this does more harm to the young cricketer, in my opinion, than playing in higher class cricket does good.

The victorious Davis Cup tennis team from Australia that won the cup at Haverford, Pa. Left to right: Jack Crawford, Adrian Quist, John Bromwich and Captain Harry Hopman.

How Australia Won The Davis Cup Final

HAVERFORD, Pa., Sept. 5.—History repeated itself on Labour Day as a fighting band of Australians turned seeming defeat into victory and once again took possession of the famed Davis Cup. It was exactly 25 years ago, with the news of the starting of the World War still clicking over the cables, that a challenging Australian tennis team defeated the United States, 3-2, at Forest Hills.

The score was the same this year, but the circumstances were much different. On one short Saturday afternoon, a heavily favoured Australian team had been reduced to an almost hopeless challenger as Bobby Riggs and Frank Parker did the "impossible" by taking both matches and establishing a 2-0 lead. That was Saturday, Sunday, Adrian Quist and John Bromwich showed they were willing to fight.

last season—got double figures. True, Eddie Gosno did not but he has been doing most of the bowling lately with Ozzolo. They have any amount of bowling but bowlers can't do it all and if they wish to repeat their last season's success they will have to concentrate on stiffening the batting. Their fielding is always excellent.

A PROTEST

I wish on behalf of myself and all cricket scribes to register a protest. I don't mind a couple of brothers in the same side—or in different sides—but on Saturday last if the scorers are right there were no less than six Gosnos playing and two of them, to add insult to injury, had the same initials G. N.—that is unless G. N. was cunning enough to disguise himself and but twice on the same side! I do for six read five. But I should take it as a kindly and necessary bit of first aid work if Dr. E. L. Gosno will send me a list of the clan complete with Christian or nicknames accordingly. The individuals are usually addressed. Otherwise we scribes shall paraphrase the war-correspondents' phrase and describe a batsman being caught or bowled by "someone of the Gosnos". They are even more difficult than another clan, the "W" clan, who refer to the "Extract of the sanguine grapes of pain."

POLICE V. R.A.F.

The players in the Police eleven seemed mostly to have previous convictions though I don't seem to remember Estall and Tyffe. The latter made 20 not out and may be a useful recruit. They missed Fay of course. Hunter and Pope also got runs, and Pope had 5 for 28. Holman is turning out again, I see, and got 2 for 14 in four overs. But the R.A.F. had had too many men getting into double figures and they won by 31 runs, Helmsley, who went on second change, taking 5 wickets for 18 in 5.4 overs.

THE NEW OVER

I understand that it has been decided to experiment with the eight-ball over here this season and it is a change with which I am entirely in accord. Half day cricket seldom allows a man to bowl more than ten overs and even in Triangular Tournament matches bowlers seldom spend more than twenty. The strain should not be too great. It may be that the bowlers will have to train a little more carefully, and cut the tobacco down a bit.

H.K.C.C. VS. K.C.C.

I hope to have some notes about the Club-Kowloon match in Thursday's issue. I trust the S. O. Else for H.K.C.C. is Charleston. The Club side is quite strong and I fancy their chances.

TO CLUB SECRETARIES

And that reminds me. Will Club Secretaries send me their fixture cards care of the Telegraph when available? Thank you very much.

SELECTIONS FOR RACES TO-DAY

(By "Captain Foster")

There are eight interesting races to be contested at Happy Valley this afternoon, the main event being the Double Tenth Plate for China ponies over a sprint from the 1½ mile post (about half mile 100 yards). The grass track is in excellent condition, but I do not expect to see any new turf record being established.

It is expected that a large crowd will be turning up and there is reason to believe that the meeting will not be devoid of the usual keenness and close finishes.

My selections for the eight races are as follows:

"Oh, go and climb a tree. I hope you get a thick head like mine. Teach you to jeer."
"Thank you, I can jeer perfectly well — I don't need any lessons. As for the thick head — so long as I stick to Ginlets or have a stiff glass of Rose's lime juice before I glide beneath my mosquito net — I'll never get one."

"You'll get one now if you don't clear out. [Pause.] What did you say about lime juice?"
"My dear fellow — the pathology of the common hangover is interesting. The blood alcohol content falls rapidly after administration of Rose's Lime Juice — the stomach..."
"Fred — does this stuff work retrospectively?"
"No harm in trying. Send your boy out for a bottle of Rose's now."

Brushed-Up Coiffures

By JACQUELINE HUNT

WE will hear exciting and amusing things from hair-dressers in the next few weeks for the autumn hair style showings and predictions are underway. As usual, there will be an original and conflicting variety of coiffures and only time will tell which will be the favourites for fall and winter, 1939-1940. We are all interested in these new hair-dos, for nothing is so stimulating as a change. We want to look prettier than ever and appear "different." A new coiffure—something similar in mood to the new clothes you select for your winter wardrobe—can do more than anything to create a new personality for you.

Out of the numerous new offerings, the style committee of the Coiffure Guild of New York has chosen one called the "Cascade Coiffure." This is an adaptation from a popular hair style of 1880. It will show the back of the neck, will be high but not strained with soft curls or rolls and both bangs and fringes of curls that drop over the forehead.

SOFT, UPSWEPT LINES

While the line is upward it is softened by bath waves and curls. The length of the hair at the sides is from four to six inches. The front hair rather short—about three and a half inches—and the back hair about four inches.

Evening coiffures will tend to be extreme, according to this organization of hair stylists, with curls, pulls and rolls used in profusion. Comb, artificial flowers and small artificial bows will be used for decorative purposes.

The Coiffure Guild says that greater distinction will be made between coiffures for young girls and those for "ladies." The younger women, because of her youth, may experiment to her heart's content. The older woman's coiffure must fit her personality and lend poise and grace to her appearance. The whole effect should be one of lightness and give a lift to the spirits as well as the face. The hairline should be shown at the front and sides to counteract any appearance of sagging or heaviness at the jawline.

There is more emphasis than ever on the neck and back arrangement of hair, since most of the time a woman is observed from the rear. The back hair may be swirled to give height, leaving the nape of the neck bare. This fits perfectly into the fashion picture that indicates a forward movement in hats and back fullness and bustles in dresses.

Black dresses lead the autumn style procession and starts early this year and back detail develops various phases of the most publicized bustle theme.

Textures like bengaline, faille and satin, are developed in the silhouette that concentrates bows and seams, as well as skirt fullness at back, with a conspicuous concentration on black.

This Cascade Coiffure selected by the Coiffure Guild of New York gives the wearer dignity and elegance. It is versatile enough to make anyone individualistic and distinctive.

For Faded Furniture

IF THE settee or arm-chair in your sittingroom suite look faded, pull-over slips will give them a new lease of life.

And, if you like, you can also give the shabby small chair of a suit tie-on covers to match the larger pieces.

ward movement in hats and back fullness and bustles in dresses.

REDDISH BLONDE THE COLOUR

You probably won't want to change the colour of your hair, but it may interest you to know that the style committee has selected a light, reddish blonde shade of hair as the "colour of 1940." White hair, they say, will be most flattering when given a faint rose or bluish cast with special rinses.

A few individualists refuse to fall in line with these dictates, and offer some of their own. One international known beauty expert predicts corsets, basques and muffs—all a part of the 1880's influence. "At least two pieces of false hair will go into every really chic coiffure," she says, "either as a stuffing for pompadours or side wings of hair, or as a back cascade of curls."

Experiment as much as you like with these new hair styles, but before you finally have your hair clipped and newly permanented, watch for my next hair style story and photographs. We'll have something extra nice for you in a week or so.

"Children's Ship Plan"

THE possibility of a "children's ship" to bring children at school in Holland back to their parents in the Netherlands Indies is being considered by a Dutch shipping company.

It is believed a guarantee for the safety of the vessel could be obtained from the belligerent countries.

Life on board would be based on the principle of a children's camp, each member doing a share of duties.

Great interest has been aroused in the plan, which would enable hundreds of children to return to their parents, who are greatly worried about the youngsters' safety in Europe.

The Dutch liners Dempo and Oranje—the latter on her maiden voyage—now on their way from Holland to Java via the Cape are fitted to capacity with passengers.

"Measure before you buy" is a recommendation to be strictly followed if you wish to suffer no regrets while you cut the new covers. A deficiency in the amount of fabric will mean that the pull-overs will not have the generous "tuck-in" between the padded portions that is absolutely essential if they are to fit comfortably. Allowance ought also to be made for seams, pipings to outline the principal parts, and any frills or boxpleated flounces that you want, as well as the waste of material that is often inevitable to get a large pattern properly placed.

Some people shrink the fabric before cutting covers that are likely to want washing. It is disappointing to find a good fit spoiled by a shrinkage at the first tubbing of the pull-overs as a liberal estimate of the amount of the material is not wasteful, but sound economy.

Outlining the Shape

Some sort of guide to cutting is very necessary. You can, if you like, make a pattern in newspaper, cutting a separate shape for back, sides, arms, and all the most important parts. Or one can lay the material, on the wrong side, against the furniture, and chalk out the outline of the shape you need.

When you have cut, remembering allowances for seams, piping, and a very good tuck-in where it is needed, pin the pieces up, wrong side again, on the furniture, and get a nice fit before you attempt to tack or seam. Cover a length of piping-cord before you tack, and secure it between all the pieces that need this outlining finish.

If "shabby" is the only term you can apply to the small chairs of suite, you have a choice of two kinds of renovation. You can make loose washable covers to put over the soiled seats and pull-over slips also, if you like, for their backs. Or, you can nail on new fitted upholstery, using the old covering as a pattern by which to cut. If you are making loose covers, a fairly deep box-pleated flounce is sometimes an improvement, and press-studs a convenient fastening.

For nailing on a cover, use small brass-headed upholstery nails, and, before driving them in, be sure that you have placed patterned stuff symmetrically. A gimp will hide your nails, and tiny gimp pins are the best for securing it.

RELIEF IN CHINA Exhibition of Chinese Paintings in America

Shanghai, Oct. 8. Miss Anne Hsi, daughter of Hsi Te-mou, General Manager of the Bank of China, is now en route to New York where Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt and other prominent Americans are arranging for the exhibition of her paintings for the benefit of Chinese relief funds.

Miss Hsi is accompanied by her younger sister, Maying, who spent a year in Boston as a student in the New England conservatory of music.

Miss Hsi's more than 100 paintings are mostly water colours in classical Chinese style, which she has studied since childhood under one of the foremost modern masters.

Miss Hsi is an unusually attractive young woman. She and her sister are among Hongkong's most popular Chinese debutantes. They had stayed in Shanghai until the war forced their family to move to Hongkong.

Some of her works are examples of the difficult use of finely powdered coloured stone applied with glue to painted background to reproduce such delicate colours as seen in flower petals.

Paying a visit to the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, recently President Albert Lebrun of France was graciously greeted by Grand Duchess Charlotte, ruler of the little country. Mme. Lebrun accompanied him.

TYPHOON THREAT

The typhoon threat to the Colony definitely passed last night, according to the Observatory.

At 2 p.m. yesterday the typhoon was situated at latitude 21, longitude 119, going north-west and threatening the coast between Swatow and Amoy.

The No. 1 signal which was hoisted yesterday afternoon was still up at midnight but the typhoon was then 350 miles from the Colony and nearing the coast.

Two British seamen, Thomas Henry Berry, 21, carpenter, and Alexander Minnis, 35, donkeyman, were sentenced to 14 days imprisonment by Commander G. F. It was stated that the War Bharata

A Look Through The "Telegraph"

50 YEARS AGO

Oct. 10, 1889. The experience of the Electric Light Company in Leeds has been that incandescent lamps become useless after a life of 800 to 900 hours, though the filaments have a nominal life of 1,000 hours.

It is now alleged in England against Zola's works that they familiarise the democracy with the crimes of the aristocracy.

In defence of the fashion of flirting with women, English society girls urge that they are impelled to this course by "the shameless manner in which the married women mop up the young men."

Greater advance seems to have been made in Russia in the displacement of wood and coal as fuel than in almost any other part of the world. Naphtha, gas, and electricity are used everywhere, and the railways and manufacturing have adopted the new fuel to the exclusion of the usual articles. It is fully 50 per cent. cheaper than either wood or coal occupies much less space in storage, and can be handled more readily. Its uses have already become common for domestic purposes, and it is rapidly displacing all other means of furnishing heat.

25 YEARS AGO

Oct. 10, 1914. The War Office has accepted the offer of a Shanghai British Contingent of a hundred and ten men for service at the front. All the men have had military training and can ride as well as shoot. The British community is paying the passages of the men, who are sailing at the earliest possible moment.

10 YEARS AGO

Oct. 10, 1929. The first broadcasting experiments in Hongkong were carried out eight years ago when transmissions were made between the Hongkong Hotel and the Hongkong Telegraph office, then in Ice House Street.

Later came the formation of the Hongkong Radio Society in 1923 and credit for much of the early work goes to Messrs. C. D. Melbourne, W. E. O'Connell, G. Taylor and D. Tolson, who were officers of the Society during its career. In 1923 also test transmissions were carried out by a private company which broadcast grand opera excerpts from the Star Theatre. The following years saw little progress but various demonstrations were given. In 1929, the Radio Society embarked on a more ambitious programme of test concerts with the object of providing radio entertainment for members and showing that there was scope for a broadcasting association. A number of concerts were organised in the hope that sufficient interest would be aroused to warrant the institution of a broadcasting service by others whose scope was less limited than the Society. In 1927, the transmitter used for these concerts was taken over by the Y.M.C.A. Entertainment for the increased garrison was abandoned owing to a reduction of the number of troops here. Broadcasting by the Government started in 1928.

5 YEARS AGO

Marseilles, Oct. 10, 1934. King Alexander of Yugoslavia has been assassinated in Marseilles. Two shots from the gun of the regicide mortally wounded M. Louis Barthou, French Foreign Minister, who rode at the King's side. Europe is shocked by the tragedy and in America the similarity between this and the efforts at Sarajevo in 1914 which caused World War has caused some apprehensiveness.

The assassin was a Yugo-Slavian exile, and was assisted by at least one accomplice. The real murderer was killed by police sabres and his companion was arrested and is being held.

Besides the King and M. Barthou, four others were killed. They are General George, a French officer, attached to King Alexander's staff; Count Alexander Dimitrije Jevitch, Court Marshal; and the King's personal military aide. One policeman was also slain. M. Barthou, mortally wounded himself, attempted to shield the King, and the chauffeur and the King's officers threw themselves in the way of the bullets, but too late.

Gave Life To Poland At 10

IGNACE JAN PADEREWSKI, the patriot and pianist who made modern Poland, first decided to give his life to his country when he was ten, he revealed recently.

While the Germans are pounding away at the capital of Paderewski's beloved Poland, his memoirs are published telling how his patriotic ambitions began in a boyhood dream to build a monument to the famous Polish victory over the Germans at Grunwald in 1410.

He tells how, when he was ten, he read for the first time about the battle of Grunwald—"a crashing victory for my country over the Teutonic knights who were then robbing Poland of her most cherished possession, access to the sea."

"My response to that historical account was so tremendous that I said to myself then: 'How happy I would be if I could make a tribute to that splendid victory—if I could live long enough and become rich and powerful enough to celebrate the 500th anniversary of that glorious battle by a monument erected to those great patriots!'"

BUILT IN 1910

"From that childish moment it became the dream and my life. It never left my heart and consciousness. And in 1910 I accomplished it."

To-day at the age of 79, Paderewski, now in Switzerland, again sees his countrymen defending their right to an outlet to the sea.

And in Cracow, where Paderewski built his monument, German troops are in occupation.

Paderewski from 1918 to 1919 led in organising the Polish Republic, and became her Premier in 1919. He resigned in 1921 and left Poland. He was a member of the Paris Peace Conference and won for Poland her Versailles concession.

Paderewski is a practical patriot. Though he has rarely been in his country since 1921, he contributes monthly to Poland's defence fund, and will continue to do so.

Two years ago he decided to return to Polish politics, but illness prevented him.

Paderewski has written the memoirs in conjunction with Mary Lawton (Collins, 11s.).

PAPERS CONFISCATED But "Suppression" Proves Admirable Publicity

Shanghai, Oct. 9. A gang of apparently pro-Japanese hoodlums started a lightning raid on newsboys who were about to start delivering 10,000 copies of the Chinese-American Daily News which appeared to-day after three weeks' suspension ordered by the Municipal Council for allegedly violent anti-Wang Ching-wei articles. The hoodlums grabbed the papers and escaped.

The paper was the target for a large-scale terrorist attack on the Shanghai's "Fleet Street" a couple of months ago when an American, Captain Albert "Tug" Wilson, was among those killed by flying bullets. The publishers of the paper yesterday informed the Police, who escorted the newsboys who peacefully sold the papers like hot cakes. When the news of the illegal confiscation spread, the Chinese throughout the city sought copies which later sold as high as 11 cents, instead of the usual three cents.—United Press.

Britain-China

Compromise With Japan Not Likely

CHUNGKING, Oct. 9. (Central).—Dr. Chu Chin-hua, Secretary General of the Kuomintang, in an exclusive interview with United Press to-day, declared that it is virtually impossible for Britain and Japan to reach a compromise at the expense of China if such negotiations are opened in the future.

He predicted that Britain would withdraw entirely from China and possibly from the entire Far East until the European situation cleared up, after which Britain will reassert her right in the Far East against Japan.

Two fundamental considerations govern the British actions. Firstly, to be patient—but to always strike back when patience is at an end, and secondly, to be realistic and to realize that a compromise will affect her vital interests.

"As long as British interests are not affected, Britain can afford to compromise, but once Japan turns southward in an attempt to take over British interests or threaten them, then Britain's vital interests will be affected and Britain will be compelled to assert her right sooner or later," Doctor Chu said.

Although he admitted that there is a possibility of Russia seeking a rapprochement with Japan in order to turn the Japanese militarists to an advance to the South at the expense of Britain, Doctor Chu said: "Russia cannot afford to see Japan become a continental Power with the resources and man-power of China under her control."

He said he can see no possibility of peace in Europe based on Hitler's proposals, because there is no guarantee that Hitler will carry out his obligations.

Russia and the United States are the biggest factors to-day, but he added that he is not willing to predict the course either nation will follow.

As far as the Far East is concerned, he said the greatest developments resulting from the European war are the complete isolation of Japan from her former allies, plus the fact that the Russo-German pact, as it stands at present, leaves Russia free to deal with Japan if the necessity ever arises.—United Press.

LATE NEWS

Big Additions To Hawaii Air Force

SHANGHAI, Oct. 10 (Internat.).—To strengthen the American air arm in the Pacific 112 pursuit planes, 60 bombers and 14 observation ships and five auxiliary amphibians together with three transport ships for liaison service will be added to the U.S. air force in Hawaii, according to a Honolulu report reaching here.

The planes will start arriving Honolulu within three weeks. Of the latest type, the pursuit planes have a speed of more than 300 miles an hour, while the bombers are the Douglas monoplanes model.

Major-General H.H. Arnold, Chief of the Army Air Force, recently completed an air inspection of Hawaii and witnessed extensive manoeuvres of the air units.

Sour Grapes?

SHANGHAI, Oct. 9 (Reuter).—The Japanese never intended to occupy Changsha, the capital of Hunan Province, declared a Japanese Army spokesman at to-day's press conference.

The so-called drive on Changsha was really intended to inflict heavy damage on Chinese troops north-east of Hunan, which, according to the Japanese spokesman, totalled 240,000, of whom 60,000 have been allegedly wiped out.

Having achieved their purpose, the Japanese withdrew to positions originally held on September 15.

The spokesman added that the Chinese claims of victories were really due to the fact that they walked into positions which had intentionally been evacuated by Japanese troops.

Ll. George Joining Peace Front?

LONDON, Oct. 9 (UP).—Mr. Lloyd George is scheduled to address a private meeting of the Council of Action for peace in London on Thursday.

It is reported that he intends to amplify his views on an immediate international conference to consider Hitler's peace proposals.

The Council session has been called by Mr. Lloyd George in his capacity as Chairman of the organization, it will be attended by delegates from all parts of the British Isles.

Neutrals Suspicious

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 9 (Reuter).—Repeated German suggestions that neutral nations should take a hand in furthering Hitler's "peace" appeal are not meeting with the success expected in Berlin.

To-day the Danish paper "National Tidende" said that the neutral nations had often been asked to refute accusations against Germany in the past.

The newspaper continued: "Now it appears that we are expected to whip up our opinion to such a pitch that our governments will unite to force peace on the belligerents."

"We consider the cause of peace will best be served by others than those who neither can nor will make war. We submit humbly that the task exceeds our powers."

Tutuila's Accident

CHUNGKING, Oct. 10 (Internat.).—The U.S. gunboat Tutuila is expected to be back in commission next month after repairs locally following her accident with a ferry boat, which rammed the warship under a heavy fog on the morning of October 4.

The mishap resulted in a four-foot hole in her star-board bow, but none of the officers and ratings was injured. The Chungking Ferry Company assumed responsibility for the accident and will pay for the cost of repairs.

Double Tenth Message

Chiang Kai-shek's Message Manifesto

CHUNGKING, Oct. 10 (Central).—Before China wins the final victory there can be no genuine peace, declared Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in a lengthy manifesto to the 450,000,000 Chinese people in free as well as "occupied" China on the National Independence Day to-day.

"With the enemy's experience the full weight of China's strength of resistance we can hope for no true awakening from them," Generalissimo Chiang added.

Reminding his fellow-countrymen that the war of resistance is to be a long and arduous struggle, Generalissimo Chiang exhorted them not to fear hardships or indulge in temporary peace or hope for speedy success.

"We must not hope for the early conclusion of the war, nor the immediate withdrawal of the enemy, nor their abandonment of aggression rightaway," Generalissimo Chiang emphasized.

Like all revolutions in the past, the present phase of the Chinese Revolution is fraught with difficulties and success can not be achieved by chance. Since the struggle has begun, it shall not be terminated until the goal is reached. It is apparent that once national consciousness has been aroused, no outside force can impede its growth. Therefore this struggle will be a sure success, Generalissimo Chiang remarked.

Success Depends On People
Declaring that China has already built a firm foundation for resistance diplomatically, economically and militarily, Generalissimo Chiang reiterated that the success of the present war depends to a large measure upon the determination and spirit of sacrifice of the Chinese people. In fact, their spirit of struggle will hereafter be more important than mere military strength.

"The whole nation must rise and shatter with determined efforts the enemy's political and economic offensives. In addition to their military advance," Generalissimo Chiang stated.

A spirit of loyalty to the State must be fostered among the Chinese at the front, in the rear as well as in enemy-occupied areas. Guerrilla warfare must be intensified to harass the enemy.

Shops, factories, mines, warehouses and other economic establishments operated by the enemy in the occupied areas and all communications in their hands, including railways, highways, telegraphs, telephones, and stations must be destroyed.

Sabotage Activities
The sabotage activities must be continued daily so that the enemy can not enjoy a single day's peace, nor can they set their hands to any of their economic reconstruction schemes.

No less important in the opinion of the Generalissimo is the elimination of traitors, who are used as a tool by the enemy for their political, economic and even military offensive, and who by betraying the State, disgrace their ancestors and make themselves as well as their descendants slaves.

"Only by eliminating the traitors can national existence be safeguarded," Generalissimo Chiang declared.

Concluding, the Generalissimo urged all Chinese, whether on the front or in the rear, to continue their efforts in the supreme struggle against the invaders without fear of death and sacrifices and irrespective of the length of time involved. They should not be moved by the theories of surrender and "peace" of the traitors.
